ALTOS SOLUTIONS ACQUIRES ONCOLOGY METRICS

Leading EMR adds clinical data analysis to its feature set

Los Altos, CA—February 12, 2010—Altos Solutions, Inc. today announced the completion of the acquisition of Oncology Metrics Company, llc, creating an oncology-specific software, technology, consulting, and data analysis company serving community-based oncology practices. The acquisition will provide Altos Solutions, the leading electronic medical records (EMR) provider for oncology, with extensive clinical benchmarking and analysis capabilities and create a company that is uniquely positioned to help oncology practices be successful.

“The combination of Oncology Metrics and Altos will provide physicians with better tools and deeper insights into their practices,” stated John T. Willey II, Altos Solution’s founder and CEO. “Ever increasing pressure on reimbursements mean oncology practices need more than an EMR; they need the management tools, benchmarking, and analysis and sometimes consulting services to help them remain successful.”

Willey will continue as the CEO of Altos Solutions while Warren M. Dodge, former president of Oncology Metrics, will become President of the combined company and be responsible for day-to-day operations. Dodge has deep industry experience, having held a variety of senior management positions in Oncology Therapeutics Network (OTN) and National Oncology Alliance (NOA), as well as in other healthcare-related companies. The leadership change allows Willey to focus on his role as chief architect and head of engineering for the company. Willey has 17 years of oncology-EMR experience, having co-invented the first oncology treatment plan generator at Vital Software, which he founded in 1993.

Oncology Metrics will operate as a division of Altos Solutions and all products and services from both companies will continue to be provided with new cross-function opportunities being implemented.

“The customers of both Altos and Oncology Metrics are the winners in this combination,” according to Dodge, newly appointed President of Altos. “Combining Altos' OncoEMR clinical management tools with Oncology Metrics' data analysis and benchmarking, takes EMRs far beyond the realm of simple online record keeping. A strong analysis capability is the key component of moving health care to the next generation where we can build evidence-based medicine.”

OncoEMR^(tm), Altos Solutions' flagship product, is a browser-based, subscription-priced EMR application with the largest feature set in the market. The intuitive, easy-to-navigate application features integrated e-Prescribing, PQRI tracking, inbound fax handling, clinical resource-based scheduling, SmartICD^(tm), auto charge coding, point-and-click progress notes, SeeMyChart^(tm) patient portal, and much more. OncoEMR is being used across the US in a wide variety of oncology settings, ranging from solo practitioners to 80 physician practices.

The new Oncology Metrics Division will continue to build networks of community-based oncology practices, fostering the use of financial, operational, and clinical information to deliver powerful information for practices to use in making clinical and business decisions based on objective data. Data collection, analysis, and the bi-annual meetings of the Oncology Circle will continue to be lead by Tom Barr, MBA and Elaine Towle, CMPE of Oncology Metrics. All Oncology Metrics programs will remain EMR agnostic, enabling practices with different EMR systems to participate.
